

Legacy Finding Aid for Manuscript and Photograph Collections

801 K Street NW
Washington, D.C. 20001

What are Finding Aids?

Finding aids are narrative guides to archival collections created by the repository to describe the contents of the material. They often provide much more detailed information than can be found in individual catalog records. Contents of finding aids often include short biographies or histories, processing notes, information about the size, scope, and material types included in the collection, guidance on how to navigate the collection, and an index to box and folder contents.

What are Legacy Finding Aids?

The following document is a legacy finding aid – a guide which has not been updated recently. Information may be outdated, such as the Historical Society’s contact information or exact box numbers for contents’ location within the collection. Legacy finding aids are a product of their times; language and terms may not reflect the Historical Society’s commitment to culturally sensitive and anti-racist language. This guide is provided in “as is” condition for immediate use by the public. This file will be replaced with an updated version when available.

SPECIAL COLLECTIONS FINDING AID

Title: MS 0823, James M. Goode Capital Losses Research Collection

Processor: Anne McDonough

Processed Date: February 2015

James Moore Goode (1939-) is a noted historian of Washington culture and architecture, as well as the author of several important books including, but not limited to, The Outdoor Sculpture of Washington, D.C. (1974); Washington Sculpture: A Cultural History of Outdoor Sculpture in the Nation's Capital (2009); Capital Losses: A Cultural History of Washington's Destroyed Buildings (1979 and 2003); Capital Views: Historic Photographs of Washington, DC, Alexandria and Loudoun County, Virginia, and Frederick County, Maryland (2012); and Best Addresses, a Century of Washington's Distinguished Apartment Houses (1988 and 2003).

Dr. Goode has generously donated much of his research material to the Historical Society of Washington, D.C.; see related materials below for additional research collections of possible interest.

Scope and Content Note: The collection comprises original handwritten and typed research notes; correspondence; excerpts from published materials; the occasional copy photograph; and other documentation gathered in the course of researching and writing Capital Losses: A Cultural History of Washington's Destroyed Buildings (Smithsonian Books). The bulk of the material relates to the second edition, published in 2003.

Processor's Note: This collection was handled following the principles of "More Product, Less Process," receiving a basic level of processing including minimal organization and description. The container list indicates the creator's original order and original folder titles. Original folders were retained wherever possible; contents were verified against folder titles in some but not all cases. Labeled folders that were empty when accessioned by the Historical Society were retained and their titles updated to indicate they were empty when received.

Donor: James M. Goode, 2014.053

Size: .8 cubic ft (2 containers)

Access Restrictions: The collection is open for research.

Use Restrictions: This is a research collection that includes photocopies of published materials as well as copy prints of photographs. Some material may be copyrighted or restricted. It is the patron's obligation to determine and satisfy copyright or other case restrictions when publishing or otherwise distributing materials found in the collections.

Preferred Citation: [Identified item], James M. Goode Capital Losses Research Collection. The Historical Society of Washington, D.C.
