

Legacy Finding Aid for Manuscript and Photograph Collections

801 K Street NW
Washington, D.C. 20001

What are Finding Aids?

Finding aids are narrative guides to archival collections created by the repository to describe the contents of the material. They often provide much more detailed information than can be found in individual catalog records. Contents of finding aids often include short biographies or histories, processing notes, information about the size, scope, and material types included in the collection, guidance on how to navigate the collection, and an index to box and folder contents.

What are Legacy Finding Aids?

The following document is a legacy finding aid – a guide which has not been updated recently. Information may be outdated, such as the Historical Society’s contact information or exact box numbers for contents’ location within the collection. Legacy finding aids are a product of their times; language and terms may not reflect the Historical Society’s commitment to culturally sensitive and anti-racist language. This guide is provided in “as is” condition for immediate use by the public. This file will be replaced with an updated version when available.

SPECIAL COLLECTION FINDING AID

Title: SP 0090 Martha Tabor “Working Images” Photograph Collection, 1978-2001

Processors: Rebecca Heath, Heather Heckler

Date: April 23, 2005

Washington, D.C.-based visual artist and freelance photographer Martha Tabor was born in Tennessee in 1939. Ms. Tabor earned her Bachelor of Arts degree in English and German Literature from Maine’s Colby College in 1961 and later went on to earn a Master of Arts degree in Comparative Literature from the University of Maryland, College Park, in 1967. From 1965 through 1968, Ms. Tabor taught English composition and literature at Frederick Community College in Frederick, Maryland.

In the late 1960s and early 1970s, Ms. Tabor worked as a union organizer, first for the Farmworkers Union in the Washington, D.C. area (1967-1969) and later as the Treasurer (1969-1970) and President (1970-1971) of Local 2677, American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO (Office of Economic Opportunity), as well as the Chief Steward of the National Council of OEO Locals and of Local 2677 (1971-1972). From 1974 through 1978, Ms. Tabor worked in heavy construction as a welder, and was involved in the construction of Washington, D.C.’s Metro system. She was a Journeyman of Local 2311, the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America. Ms. Tabor was also a Co-Coordinator and founding member of Women Working in Construction, a Washington, D.C.-based organization of women who worked in blue-collar trades.

In 1980, Ms. Tabor earned a Master of Arts degree in Photography from Goddard College, in Plainfield, Vermont. Her independent work project was entitled “Women in Non-Traditional Blue-Collar Work,” and included seven photo essays and interviews with women employed in different blue-collar industries. In the late 1970s, Ms. Tabor founded Working Images, a freelance photography business. As a freelancer, Ms. Tabor worked as the Washington photographer for Press Associates, Inc., and for clients such as the Urban Institute, National Organization on Disability, American Rivers, Inc., Women’s Legal Defense Fund, Christian Social Action, the Department of Labor (photographing various occupations for their Occupational Outlook Handbook), trade unions, and several Quaker schools. Ms. Tabor was the contract photographer for Chronicle Guidance Publications, Inc., publisher of the Occupational Briefs series, which provides detailed information on a wide variety of professional, technical, blue-collar and white-collar jobs. As part of her freelance business, Ms. Tabor kept and regularly updated a large collection of stock photos of people working in hundreds of different occupations.

Ms. Tabor was also a member of Impact Visuals, a New York City-based, cooperatively owned photography archive and publication service that specializes in providing photographs related to social justice issues and underserved communities for various publications.

Apart from her work as a photographer, Ms. Tabor worked as a sculptor and printmaker, exhibiting extensively in the D.C. area and elsewhere. Reproductions of some of her work can be found at: <http://washingtonart.com/tabor/tabor.html>. Of her work in these media, Ms. Tabor wrote: “I’ve come from a fairly straight documentary photography background and professional career as a photographer into printmaking (screenprinting) and most recently into sculpture. I’ve found that sculpture and printmaking allow me to work more poetically and suggestively than I was able to do with photography. I also like the physicality of sculpture, the ‘thingness of the materials.’”

Ms. Tabor donated the Martha Tabor “Working Images” Photograph Collection to the Historical Society of Washington, D.C. shortly before her death—after a long battle with cancer—on January 10, 2004. Describing the content of her work, Ms. Tabor commented: “From the early 1970s until five or six years ago, I worked as a documentary photographer with a strong focus on social and political issues. I come out of and have been influenced by the struggles of the 1960s and 1970s—anti-war, civil rights, equal opportunity in employment—and my photographs have focused on those intense realities.” The thousands of prints in this collection are representative of these commitments.

Scope and Content: The Martha Tabor “Working Images” Photograph Collection is arranged in two series:

SERIES I: OCCUPATIONS is arranged alphabetically by occupation and, on some occasions, by the name of a specific company or institution where Ms. Tabor photographed a number of different occupations (in these cases, job titles have been provided in the folders’ descriptions and cross-referenced where necessary). Most folders in this series contain 8”x10” black and white prints, and the majority contain negatives and contact sheets. Some folders may also include model release forms, copies of correspondence with specific businesses or companies, Ms. Tabor’s notes, or information (such as business cards) indicating the company or business where the photographs were taken. On occasion, a folder may include a Chronicle Guidance Publication for which Ms. Tabor provided photographs.

In order to maintain Ms. Tabor’s original order, some groups of folders have been given a subject heading according to the category of occupation under which they fall (such as “armed forces” or “clerks”), which, though not indicated, was clearly Ms. Tabor’s intention. The folders in these sections have been alphabetized within their specific categories.

Exact dates have been provided when available (often from Ms. Tabor’s labels) and approximate dates have been provided in brackets, based on model release forms or other notes. All of the photographs in this series were taken sometime between 1978 and 2001.

SERIES II: SOCIAL ISSUES is arranged into thirteen sub-series:

Sub-series A: The Elderly/ Elderly Issues is arranged chronologically.

Sub-series B: Environmental Issues is arranged chronologically.

Sub-series C: Labor is arranged chronologically.

Sub-series D: Homelessness/Housing/Poverty is arranged chronologically.

Sub-series E: Gun Control/Anti-Gun Rallies is arranged chronologically.

Sub-series F: The Arts is arranged chronologically.

Sub-series G: Education is arranged chronologically.

Sub-series H: Disability Issues is arranged chronologically.

Sub-series I: D.C. Community Issues is arranged chronologically.

Sub-series J: Anti-War Demonstrations is arranged chronologically.

Sub-series K: Gay and Lesbian Rights is arranged chronologically.

Sub-series L: International Issues (Demonstrations?) is arranged chronologically.

Sub-series M: Other Issues is arranged chronologically.
